University of Texas Brownsville Selects CSI Software

Houston, TX January 27, 2009 08:00 AM

- The University of Texas at Brownsville has selected Spectrum NG by CSI Software as its new campus recreation software system.
- The software will be deployed at the new Recreation, Education and Kineisology (REK) Center.
- The REK Center is a $25 million facility spreading over 150,000 square feet and is scheduled to open this March.
- The facility is planned to be a campus recreation zone, and include everything from classrooms, faculty offices, a motor development, exercise and physiology labs, as well as racquetball courts, a weight room and lap pool. Sports fields will surround the facility, making this the anchor of the campus recreational zone.
